

Sustainable Resilient Remediation Guidance

It's official! The Interstate Technology Regulatory Council (ITRC) has published guidance on Sustainable Resilient Remediation (SRR) (click here). In June 2019, SURF partnered with the ITRC to update the 2011 green and sustainable remediation guidance and include a strong resilience component to address the increasing threat of extreme weather events and wildfires. The new guidance includes:

- An interactive framework for integrating sustainability and resilience into the remedial project life cycle
- Case studies where SRR principles have been applied
- Tech sheets highlighting SRR activities in several states
- Checklists of sustainable best management practices

Congratulations to all SURFers who contributed to this guidance!

Universal Principles Integrated into Company Strategy, Operations, and Culture

GHD, a SURF sponsor, has been a signatory of the United Nations Global Compact (UNGC) since 2010. The UNGC has 10 universal principles that address the areas of human rights, labor, the environment, and anti-corruption (click here for the list). GHD is committed to integrating these principles and the UN's 17 sustainable development goals (click here) into its strategy, culture, and day-to-day operations. GHD is employee-owned and services over 130 countries. Its 10,000 employees encourage and support their clients and other business partners in their efforts to achieve sustainable outcomes.
